We mostly know ourselves in parts, with different identities in different situations. How then can we engage our writing practices to meet the whole of who we are?

These weekend sessions will offer the time and space, from your own home, for you to reclaim and write about some of what has been lost in order to encounter a clear sense of your wholeness.

*Please bring a special stone to be your writing companion.

The only way to register for our online initiatives is to email Mary Lou Gormley at program@lorettomaryholme.ca before May 26th.
